THE Democratic nominee for Auditor General—Mr. Hartley was twice arrested by Gen. Couch during the late war for rendering aid and comfort to the rebels. This accounts for his nomination by the Reading Convention. Wonder if the reformers esteem him an honest man! Where is Aleck?

FORNEY IN A FIX.

We call the attention of our readers to the following correspondence:

PHILADELPHIA, June 18, 1872.
To the Editor of the TELEGRAPH.

SIR:—Forney and his purchaser have promptly denied the charge I made against the slave, and Benjamin Bannan, Esq., has settled the question of veracity between us. I am content. Greeley and Bannan on one side, and Forney and M'Clure on the other.

Being vindicated in my first charge believe me when I state what follows: A certain delegate to the Democratic convention at Reading voted for Cass until the moment of his direst need, and then ratted to Buckalew. When Cass' friends questioned him about his desertion of their favorite, he justified his betrayal of Cass by declaring that he had the assurance of John W. Forney that if the Democrats nominated Buckalew the Press would support him for Governor against the Republican nominee. Now let the purchaser of the political prostitute of the Press be careful how he rushes into a denial of this charge! And let all remember that the question is not who is leading the Republican party of Pennsylvania, but who is betraying it for a dirty bribe?

ATTICUS.

THE CAT OUT OF THE BAG—SOUTHERN VIEWS.

We here every day that the Southern Democrats and Conservatives are favorable to Mr. Greeley and that the Southern papers with a few exceptions are inclined to endorse "Honest Horace." Some are warmly in favor of him, others only inclined to support him on the "Anything to beat Grant," principle, and as the best possible chance to regain the political power lost during the war.

The Watchtower a Democratic paper published in Alabama, reflects the views of a large majority of Southern votes. They want to swallow Greeley but do not exactly like the pill. They prefer taking their own time and by sugar-coating it with Greeley's bail bond, and his peculiar idea of State Rights, may by the time the Baltimore Convention assembles succeed in getting it down. But will it stay down? The Watchtower, lets the cat out of the bag, in an article reviewing the Cincinnati platform. It says:

"In any view, self respect requires that we should evince no alacrity in supporting Mr. Greeley. He was the Ajax Telamon of abolitionism. We owe him no debt of gratitude. Neither, however, do we owe such debt to any Republican, still less to any war Democrat. Only to copper-heads, so called, who were true to the constitution and opposed to the war, do we owe any such debt. But this debt we can never pay; except by occupying such a position as shall secure to these friends, from the different war parties, due consideration."

Support Greeley merely to repay a debt of gratitude to the "Copperheads" of the North for opposing the war!! If in this charitable support they can aid in bringing their old friends into power again, their cup of happiness will be full to overflowing. This is the secret of the whole movement. Horace Greeley expects to be elected by his old political enemies, who in turn expect to be restored to power again by him. In this event the South may obtain the object of their hopes,—peaceable secession—before the expiration of Mr. Greeley's term. It is cruel in Meek to oppose his Southern brethern. He should support Greeley because, he thus permits his rebel friends to pay the "debt of gratitude" they owe him for opposing the war. Verily, it is an unholy alliance. The people see it. They know their ancient enemy. And hence, the scheme will fail. We know that the Republicans and honest Democrats of Centre will not lend their aid to any scheme or movement that would destroy the Union or bring on another war.

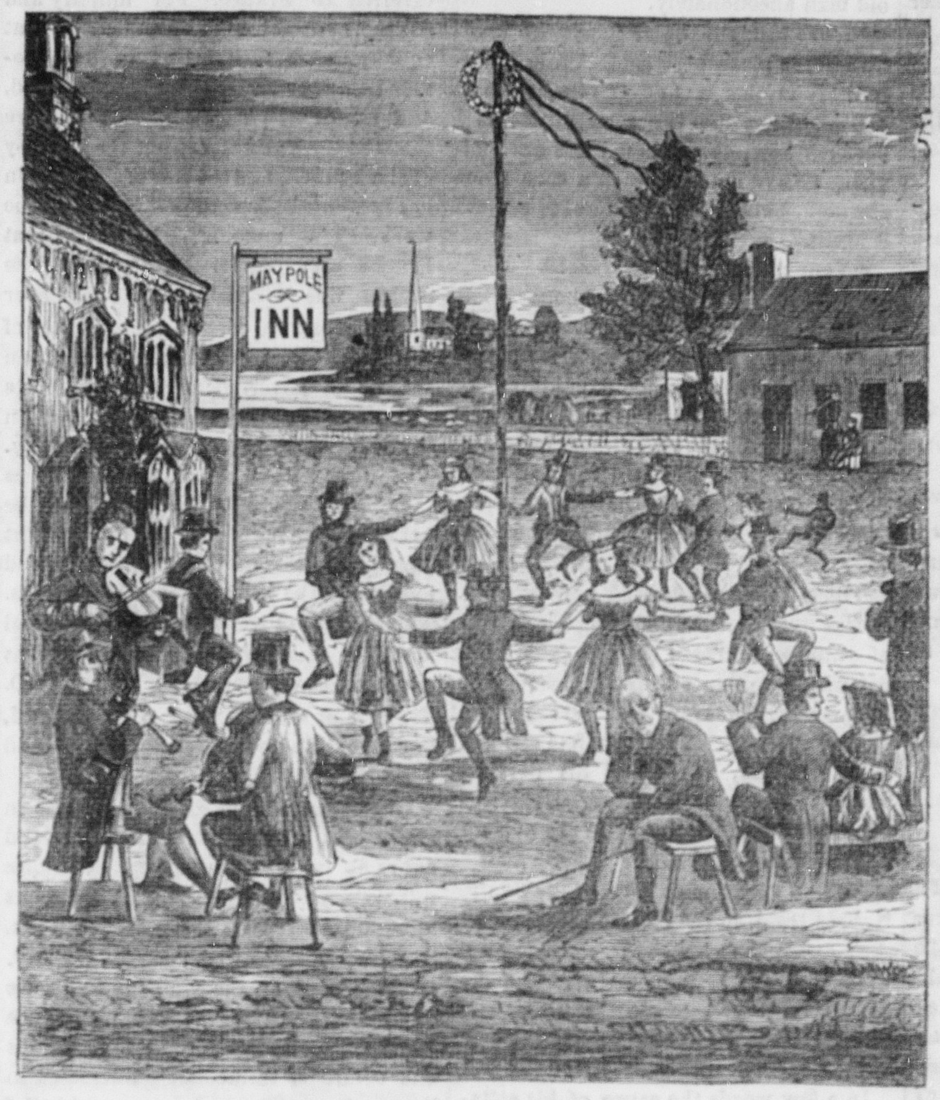
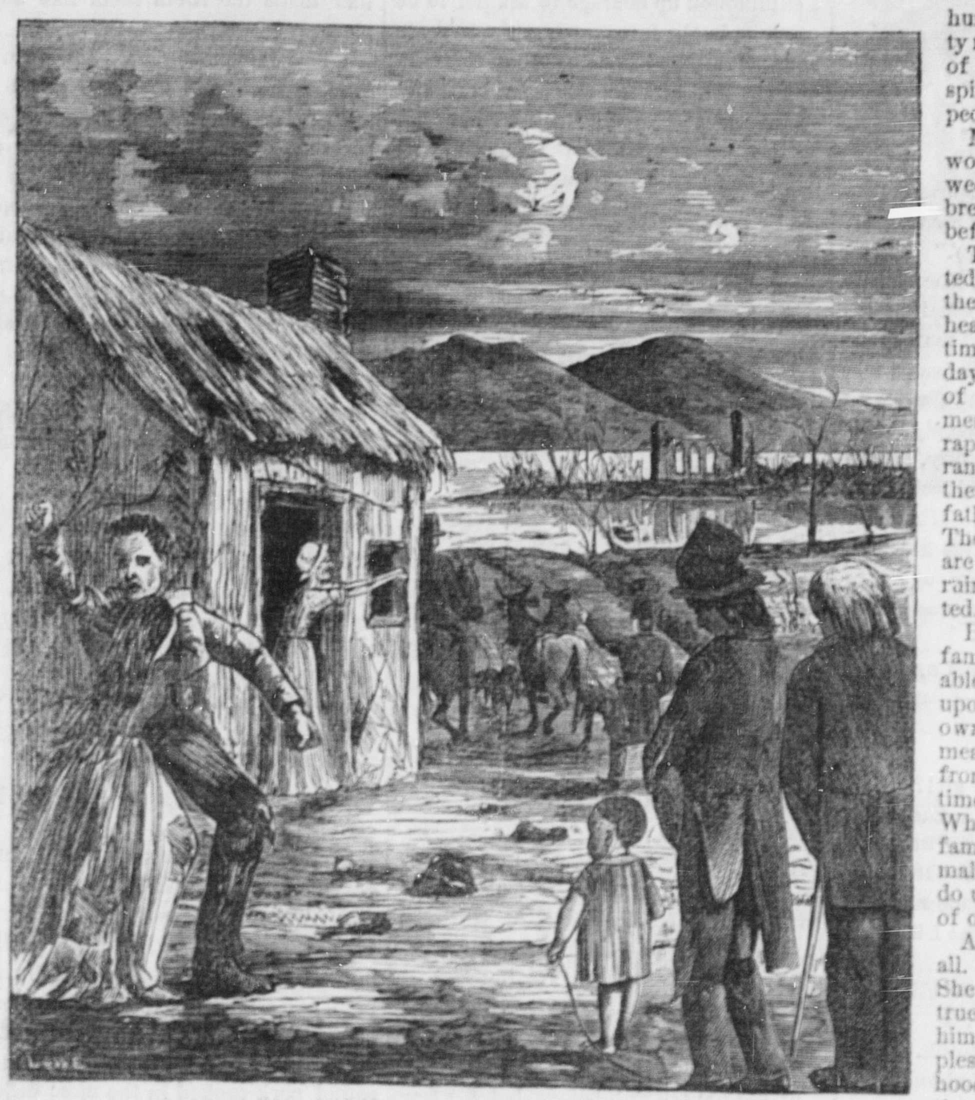
IRELAND THEN AND NOW.

Fruitful our soil where honest men starve,
Empty the mart and shipless the bay:
Out of our want the Oligarchs carve,
Foreigners fatten on our decay.

Down trodden old Ireland is destined to rise from the subjection of centuries into independence and power. Scholars tell us that for ages she was the chief seat of learning in christian Europe, and that the most distinguished scholars who appeared in other countries were mostly either Irish by birth or had received their education in Irish schools. It was customary for Englishmen of all ranks, from the highest to the lowest, to retire for study and devotion to Ireland, where they were all hospitably received and supplied gratuitously with food, with books and with instruction. Another writer tells us that the Hibernians, who were called Scots, were in the eighth century lovers of learning, and were cultured in the sciences beyond all other European nations, traveling through the most distant lands both with a view to improve and communicate their knowledge.





Ireland as it Was and Ireland as it Is.

They filled the highest positions in the Universities of France, Germany and Italy.

Centuries ago Irish wool and woolen goods found ready sale in every port of Europe.

When the power of England was established over them a change began. The London merchants complained that Irish manufactures interfered with English manufactures, and petitioned that they be uprooted. This policy was pursued for centuries. Every legislative device was resorted to to repress Irish manufactures. The island was parcelled out to English landholders who exacted oppressive rents from the real owners. An army of officers were placed over them and every form of tax was imposed. The manufactures declined, and the people, unable to buy, were reduced to great poverty that England and her trades-people might thrive.

The blood of every true Irishman is stirred at the remembrance of the degradation to which his native home has been reduced. Little by little the blooming gardens and rich fields of Ireland were blighted. Year by year the wealth of the people decreased, and the volume of taxes upon their sparse earnings increased.

Ireland was oppressed by legislation that England might grow. Her people were starved that England might have plenty. They were not permitted to make anything which might or could be made in England.

We present a true picture of Ireland as she was and is. Her comfortably housed and clothed people once met annually around the decorated May pole to celebrate in song and dance the return of the spring time. They were happy days then and the music of fiddle and horn filled every Irish heart with joy. The memory of their fathers was still green. No tyrannical legislation, no foreign imperious master, no odious tax gatherer, no enforced teachers dictated to them—they were free to live in all the happiness their industry and frugality could bring them.

Happy homes and smiling farms covered the Isle, busy ships filled her ports, and prosperous merchants filledher cities.

Such scenes as this were common one hundred years ago; but the thrifty race of people were turned out of their mills and shops, the spindle and the loom were stopped by the officers of the law.

Men began to ask what they would do. Women began to weep and children to cry for bread. Hovels now arose where before were comfortable homes.

The May Pole Inn was deserted. When spring time came the people's hearts were too heavy to congregate as aforetime to sing the songs of former days and record the memories of sweet olden times. The memory of stern landlords, of rapacious tax collectors, of tyrannical laws, stood before them. The very land their fathers once owned is not theirs. Their ships are idle, their mills are closed, their merchants are ruined, commerce is prostrated.

Here are the fruits of it; a family, reduced to poverty, unable to pay the taxes imposed upon them by English land owners, stand and see their only meagre support driven away from their door. How many times this has been a reality! What can the idle and starving family do without these animals. What can willing hands do under such a cursed system of oppression.

America opens her arms to all. But she asks one thing.—She asks that every Irishman be true to the country that gives him a home and to the principles by which he earns a livelihood. That system is Protection.

Every Irishman who votes for free trade or for men who favor it is an enemy to his native land, and is undeserving of the benefits of a free country. Every Irishman who aids free traders only aids England to tighten her rivets of oppression upon his native land.

Irishmen, labor is what you have to sell. If the people who live in England and Scotland and Wales sell their labor to the people of this country you cannot sell yours. Protection is the lash which will yet make the British lion roar. Learn to use it for your own power.

THE REFORMERS ARRAIGN THE ADMINISTRATION—PROTECTION OF CIVIL RIGHTS IN THE SOUTH.

At their Convention in Cincinnati, the reformers arraigned the Republican party and the Administration of President Grant, before the people of the United States, upon the charge, that a series of laws, known as the anti-Ku Klux laws, are unnecessary. They joined the Democratic party of the North, in asserting that all protective Legislation, by the National Government, for loyal men in the South, was not only an infringment of the Constitution, establishing despotic and centralizing precedents, but is and was entirely unnecessary.

They allege that these enactments are a just cause of complaint and a source of irritation to the late rebels. And yet the report of the joint Investigating Committee and the trials held in the State of South Carolina, proved by the most abundant, and indubitable evidence, by scores and scores of witnesses, and in a manner entirely satisfactory, if human testimony is ever to find credence, that nearly the entire white community of the South was leagued together, and organized to intimidate their political opponents. Their object being, by murder and arson, by whipping, and scourgings, to drive the loyal votes, both white and colored—either out of the State or into the most abject submission.

We published in the REPUBLICAN from time to time, extracts from these reports and investigations, and our readers will remember that the fact was elicited that out of a list of upwards of a hundred well established murders of colored men in the South, there was not a single conviction, nor a solitary case of punishment for these crimes. On the other hand, it a negro was even accused of crime, he was generally lynched and the punishment, in every case, was swift and sure.

It is but a few months, since, in Arkansas, the civilized world shuddered as it gazed upon a spectacal so revolting that it stamped the chief actors as greater in brutality than the Cannibals of the Fejee Islands. A body of men there set the jail on fire for the express purpose of roasting a negro alive, and prevented with loaded guns, every effort to extinguish the flames. They turned a deaf ear to the groans and wails of the victim and received his solemn protestations of innocence with shouts of derisive laughter, as he rushed from garret to cellar for some avenue of escape. This story was published in the Tribune at the time and will therefore not be contradicted by the reformers.

We say deliberately that these men are more brutal than the inhabitants of the Fejee Islands, because the Cannibals only roast their victims after death, while these Arkansaw Rangers and Democrats burned their victim alive, merely to gratify their brutal passions—their hate of the negro, free.

This case is not an isolated one. Similar brutality and crimes have been committed in many places, and yet the National Administration is denounced for devising and enforcing laws, the object of which, is to give adequate protection, and to save civilization itself from dissolution and total distruction.

If the Cincinnati Reformers had accused the Administration of too great leniency, and of insufficient energy in the execution of the anti-Ku-klux laws, their censure would not have been altogether undeserved. We know that too many of these great criminals have been permitted to escape with impunity and that both Congress and the President have been too passive—too merciful if you please—in devising ways and means to put a stop to these outrages.

One of the excuses advanced for this passiveness, is that the perverted public sentiment, which was represented by the Cincinnati Convention, the great veneration for the forms of the common law, and the impossibility of comprehending and realizing the terrible State of public affairs in the South, have all tended to paralize the Administration, and to induce it and the courts to be exceedingly merciful towards these evil doers.

The allegation that the Ku-Klux legislation, which simply provides that in all cases where the State courts refuse to protect men against incendiarism and murder, the Federal Courts shall have jurisdiction, and in all cases where the combination is so formidable that the ordinary processes of law cannot be executed; the President after giving due notice, may suspend the writ of Habeas Corpus within the insurrectionary District, is unconstitutional, is an absurd and unsupported assertion.

The Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments to the Constitution, expressly confer upon Congress the power to protect the freedmen and all others in their rights of life, liberty and property. The idea, that within the jurisdiction of the National Flag, murders and other crimes, can be committed with perfect impunity, while we have extradition treaties with all the nations of the world, recalling the absconding criminals, is a monstrosity. Allegiance and protection are reciprocal. No citizen should be asked to pay taxes and support the Government with his best counsel in time of peace, and with his life in time of war, when it gives him no protection in his natural rights. For this there can be no substitute. No particular form of Government can atone for the absence of the blessings which security and safety afford. Black Stone, Kent, Story, and all legal writers contend that where a Government fails in maintaining order and security, and ceases to punish the criminals, it is on the high way to anarchy and dissolution.

The Cincinnati reformers are not simply advising to give as a prize to the vengeance of the ex-rebel, three millions of helpless human beings, but they go further. They point out the road to National demoralization, to anarchy and confusion, which constitute the most terrific of all despotisms. They proclaim in effect that the individual strong, shall override the individual weak; that might makes right; that possession is law and there is no constitutional power in the General Government to guarentee to its citizens safety or protection, when sojourning in the several States.

We state it earnestly and solemnly that we prefer to have all state lines wiped out and all State Governments abolished rather, than to have our citizens subjected to local prejudices and local tyranny—to murder, rapine and insult. An American citizen guilty of no crime, is as fully entitled to the protection of the National Government when sojourning in South Carolina, as he is, when traveling in Canada, Mexico, or any other foreign country.

The lowest depth of demagoguery was reached by these Cincinnati wolves in sheeps clothing, when, instead of upholding the arm of the Government in striking down crime, they counselled with the criminals, and protested that the human buzzards shall continue without legal restraint to devour the weak and helpless. Let the civilized world point the finger of scorn at these unprincipled wretches.

THE following is Gen. Grant's letter of acceptance of the nomination to the Presidency of the United States, for a second term:

EXECUTIVE MANSION.
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 10, 1872.

The Hon. Thomas Settle, President National Republican Convention, Paul Strabach, Elisha Baxter, C. A. Sargeant and others Vice-Presidents.

GENTLEMEN: Your letter of this date advising me of the action of the Convention held in Philadelphia, Pa., on the 5th and 6th of this month, and of my unanimous nomination for the Presidency by it, is received.

I accept the nomination, and through you return my heartfelt thanks to your constituents for this mark of their confidence and support. If elected in November, and protected by a Providence in health and strength to perform the duties of the high trust conferred, I promise the same zeal and devotion to the good of the whole people for the future of my official life, as shown in the past. Past experience may guide me in avoiding mistakes, inevitable with novices in all professions and in all occupations.

When relieved from the responsibilities of my present trust, by the election of a successor, whether it be at the end of this term or next, I hope to leave to him, as Executive, a country at peace within its own borders, at peace with outside nations, with a credit at home and abroad, and without embarrassing questions to threaten its future prosperity.

With the expression of a desire to see a speedy healing of all bitterness of feeling between sections, parties, or races of citizens, and the time when the title of citizen carries with it the protection and privileges to the humblest that it does to the most exalted, I subscribe myself, very respectfully, your obdt. servant,

U. S. GRANT.

[Special Dispatch to the Pittsburg Commercial.

PHILADELPHIA, June 22, 1872.

The story in to-day's Press, that Mr. Errett, Chairman of the Republican State Committee, admits in private that Hartranft cannot be elected, and that Grant is the real drag on the ticket, is denounced by Mr. Errett as false from beginning to end, and the whole Press article is without foundation.

H. O. N.

HARTLEY.

William Hartley, of Bedford, the Democratic candidate for Auditor General, we have been well acquainted with all our life. We repeat, we know him well, and must say, that had the Democratic party raked the State all over with a fine tooth comb, they could not have found a meaner man. He was a rebel of the worst description during the war, and rejoiced over every rebel success, and disparaged and belittled every Union victory. He was the chief fomentor of a strife in the Methodist Church, in that place, and finally succeeded in leading a portion of its members away from that honored branch of christians, for no other reason than that the Church was loyal to the Union cause, and its ministers and members prayed for the success of the Union armies and the heads of the government. Although his father left him a fortune, and he has improved it in business and speculation in oil wells until he is reputed to be worth several hundred thousand dollars, yet we venture the assertion, and defy successful contradiction, that he never entered into a contract with a mechanic for a job of work, that he did not dispute the contract, and refuse to pay the bill, unless the workman would take less money than he agreed to pay him. He cannot keep a hired hand, or a tenant, any length of time on account of his meanness, and because he tries to cheat them out of their wages. If the Democratic party nominated him because of his wealth, expecting him to give of his funds to carry on the campaign, they will be mistaken, for wealthy as he is he worships money as much as any good Christian does his God, and a nickle penny appears as big in his eyes as a cart wheel. In Bedford county he is properly appreciated by the laboring men, who will remember his meanness when they come to the election. Against him we have General Harrison Allen, a brave soldier. Patriotic and honest people should not deliberate long between them.—Hollidaysburg Register.

BELLEFONTE REPUBLICAN

BELLEFONTE, PA.

I WISH I WAS A PRINTER.

BY ANNIE A. SUTTON.

I wish I was a printer,
 I really do indeed;
It seems to me that printers
 Get everything they need.
 (Except money!—ED.)

They get the largest and the best
 Of everything that grows;
And get free into circuses,
 And other kinds of shows.
 (By giving an equivalent!)

The biggest bugs will speak to him,
 No matter how they dress;
A shabby coat is nothing,
 If you own a printing press.
 (Policy!)

At ladies' fairs they are almost hugged
 By pretty girls who know
That they will crack up everything
 That ladies have to show.
 (A slander!)

And thus they get a "blow out" free
 At every party feed,
The reason is because they write,
 And other people read.

Herman's Courtship.

"I don't know how to answer you. Your news is very hard for me to bear. I feel amazed, angry, Herman."

Herman Wilson, himself, the picture of sorrowful amazement, looked at his uncle in silence, as the old man spoke with angry vehemence. He was a tall, stalwart young man of twenty-four, with a fresh, handsome face, now deeply clouded. His uncle was not over fifty, but an appearance of ill health and feebleness made him seem much older. His usual pallor crept once more over his finished, excited face before he spoke again to Herman, and his angry voice was gentle as its wont, as he said:

"I was hasty, Herman, hurt and surprised. Tell me now, how did it happen?"

"I scarcely know how to tell you, sir," said his nephew, respectfully.

"Where did you meet this girl?"

"Miss Miller," said Herman, flushing a little at his uncle's designation, "was very intimate with Mr. Grey's daughters. I met her there. Mr. Grey made me welcome in his home as soon as I became his clerk."

"You met her at Mr. Grey's. Well?"

"I love her. That is all."

"All! Enough, I should think. And she loves you, I suppose, or I should not have heard all this?"

"She loves me," said the young man, with pardonable pride.

"Oh, Herman, why couldn't you have fallen in love with one of Grey's girls? Nice, domestic, home-like girls, that would have made a home for you. I know this is an idle. stuck-up girl, if she is not fooling you."

"I think you misjudge her, uncle."

"Don't tell me," was the answer, at once sad impatient. "She is John Miller's daughter. I can never welcome her. Never."

"I hope you will not hold to that resolution, Uncle James."

"I suppose you were influenced some by the thirty thousand dollars her mother left her?"

"I didn't know she had one cent."

"Her mother kept that safely, and left it to the daughter. I knew that, at the time she died. Oh, my lad, think better of it. Money is not everything."

"I tell you I never heard of her money till this minute. I wish you would see her."

"I—I see her? Never! If you marry John Miller's daughter, you may take leave of me and the farm. I'll have none of that blood around me. John Miller's daughter!"

"But, uncle, you would not turn me away from here—from the only home I have known since my parents died!"

"Bah! you won't care for that. You've been living in Tournay a year now, and you say Mr. Grey makes you a good offer if you stay with him. Then your wife will be rich, so you need not care for the farm."

For, be it known, James Wilson had a sore heart ever since his nephew had left the farm, and gone to be a clerk in the town near by. He did not like farming, he said, and could make more money in town. But as his uncle spoke now, Herman suddenly remembered the years spent in this his only home, the kind, fatherly love of his relative, and spoke with honest warmth.

"I do care for the farm, Uncle James, and I care still more for your love. No matter how much money I make or hold, I can never have another such home or father."

"Well, boy, why don't you stay here, then? Oh, if it was anybody but John Miller's girl!"

"But, Uncle James, it is John Miller's girl. Will you tell me why one of Mr. Grey's daughters would have suited you any better?"

There was a dead silence in the room for some minutes after this. Uncle James spoke at last, in a low tone, as if he was reading instead of conversing.

"When I was a young man, Herman, not older than you are now, I was working on this farm for old Squire Heyward, who was very fond of me then."

"He left you the farm did he not?"

"Yes, but there was no talk of that then, I was only a farm hand then, though the old squire always chose me to drive him out, or to do any business that required a trusty person. He had no family so it made a stir when his sister died in New York, and the daughter came to live on the farm. She was the handsomest woman I ever saw in my life, quite young about seventeen, but with all the self possession and coquetry of a woman of thirty. I was, as I said, often about her uncle, and met Arabela—that was her name—frequently. She was so kind to me, so gracious, had so many winning ways, that she had my heart in her grasp in less than a week. My love was fairly worshipping, and when she would give me smiles and words of encouragement, how was I, a poor country boy, to know it was all skillful coquetry, the spot of a hard hearted flirt? Then John Miller came and he too loved her. He was a young lawyer, who settled in town but came over here very often, sometimes for a week's visit at one time. Arabella played her part so well, that I never suspected the truth till I summoned up courage to ask her to be my wife in the future, when she told me she was engaged to John Miller came in, and she told him my cherished hope and secret as a good joke. Together they laughed at the country bumpkin, and John made sneering remarks that stung me almost to madness. I think I would have struck him to the ground, but a kindly hand was placed upon my arm, and turning, I found the squire had entered the room unperceived. Sternly, rebuking the others, he led me away, and sent me on a long journery next day, upon some private business. When I returned, John was gone with his bride. The old squire left her thirty thousand dollars, but he left me the farm. I was nearer to him than his own niece. Herman, don't ask me to welcome the child of John and Arabela here. I cannot do it."

"You know that her parents are both dead. She lives with her father's sister."

"I know. John died insolvent in spite of his sharp practice and avarice. Arabela only lived a few years after her husband."

Another long silence followed. Then Herman spoke:

"Uncle James, I cannot give Fanny up. But I promise never to bring her home as my wife until you consent to the marriage. Will you see her?"

"No, no! Wait till I die, Herman. I won't live very long, Doctor Hodges says."

"Uncle James!"

"I did not tell you before, lad, for fear of paining you. Doctor Hodges said last week that I was failing. I made him tell me. I may live a few years longer—I may be called any day."

"And I was worrying you," said the young man, penitent and tearful.

"No, lad; I like to know all you are doing. You will come home often?"

"Do you think I will go away again? My place is here."

"I should be very glad to have you, Herman. It is hard to find an honest overseer when the farmer himself is sick. But your prospects in town, Herman."

"Let them go. Uncle James, do you think I could leave you now? You have been more than a father to me; let me try now to fill a son's place to you."

"And Fanny Miller?"

"We will talk of her some other time. Tell me how farm matters stand."

The conversation that followed awakened still further the kindly emotions of the young man's heart, and his remorse for the past years' absence. It seemed like a desertion, when he heard of his uncle's loneliness; of how badly out door matters had gone, in hired hands; of the waste, the domestic difficulties and losses.

"I would not have told you all this, if you had not offered to stay," the old man said.

"I should have stayed before, had I known you were so ill. You have always been about when I came over."

"I have never been confined to my room. Still, I grow weaker. I wish we had a good servant. Eliza is very wasteful, impudent, and I think dishonest."

"I will drive over to Tournay to-morrow, and see if a good servant can be found, uncle."

But the first call the next day was not in search of a servant, but to the doctor's, and Herman Wilson came out of his office with a very grave face.

"I am glad you are to be at home,' the doctor had said. "Though the first relief may not be as complete as you would desire."

"What do you mean? You said that rest and freedom from care or responsibility might prolong my uncle's life for years."

"I say so still. But the first reaction, from the long strain and worry may be serious. He has kept up by sheer force of will; now, when he may rest he will probably be ill for many days. I wish he had a good servant. Eliza is not a pleasant nurse, I should judge. She looks to me as if she had lived upon lemons and pickles all her life."

"I am going to look for a good servant to-day."

"Why don't you take the old man a nice little niece?"

"All in good time, doctor. I must say good day. I have to tell Mr. Grey of my new plans, and find a servant.'

"Good day, then. Send for me if I am needed."

The day seemed a long one to James Wilson, watching for the nephew who was like a son in his heart. Eliza, resenting the new arrangement that threatened to disturb her much abused reign, was slamming doors, and making kitchen jars which were very trying to the invalid's nerves. A dinner badly cooked, and served with bangs of spite and illnature, did not improve matters, and made the arrival of Herman's companion almost as welcome, as himself. For he had found a servant, whom he escorted to the house with pardonable pride, and introduced as—

"Annie, uncle. She has been highly recommended to me, and I think will suit us."

"I will try to make you comfortable sir," said the new girl, modestly; and Uncle James declared that the sight of her face and sound of her voice was sufficent for that.

She was not pretty, though her face was very pleasant to look at, and her voice was still more pleasant to hear. She was neatly dressed as became her station; and before she took off hat or cloak, she had made the room seem like another place.

Uncle James wondered how a few light touches here and there, a gentle little stir of the dull fire, a dropping of the curtains, a little twitch of the table-cloth, could do so much.

"This is the living-room I suppose," she said, presently. "I think I shall ask for an hour or two alone here to-morrow."

"Just as you please."

"Will you see Eliza now?" Herman asked.

"Yes. Is she in the kitchen?"

"I have told Annie," Herman said, "to keep Eliza, if she would be reasonable, and submit to her."

"Two girls, Herman?"

"Annie is to be our housekeeper, uncle and Eliza is to do the rough work. I must be out of the house a great deal, if we are ever to get affairs straightened, and spring is opening very fast. Annie is to make you her special charge."

"Arrange it as you will, Herman. I feel very faint and sick to-night. My dinner was quite uneatable."

"Annie will you see to supper. I will give her a hint."

Surely, Uncle James thought Herman had made a most judicious selection of a girl. The table was set as he had never seen it before. Cloth, dishes and the homely tea-service all shone with cleanliness, and the supper would have tempted an epicure. Light, flaky biscuit, an omlet that was a miracle of lightness, sound pork cooked in the most delicious sauce of cream and other mysterious ingredients, and coffee whose aroma alone was a bouquet to the gentleman's nostrals. President over all, the pleasant face and neatly attired figure.

"Eliza declines to take a second place, Mr. Wilson," she said; "but will remain until you find another girl."

Is about a week Mr. Wilson senior began to wonder how he ever existed without his new hosekeeper.

A young cheery girl was found to take Eliza's place, and over all the old farmhouse settled a home-like peace that was the best medicine for the invalid.

Doctor Hodges proved a true prophet. For many days after his nephew returned to him, James Wilson was very ill, requiring patient and tender nursing.

It was Annie who made his room cozy and very pleasant with pretty curtains, a strip of carpet, here and there, till he was well enough to have a whole one tacked on. It was Annie who brought him tempting little dishes, just enough to satisfy him, without exciting the disgust that Eliza's coarse messes did.

Annie read to him, chatted with him, got Herman to buy a backgammon-board, and taught the invalid to play.

Annie brought him little cheering pieces of news—how the farm matters were improving, how Herman was plowing here and sowing there; of the new barn arrangements that would make the cattle healthier, and, as she said, gaily "ever so much happier." Never did a frown cross the broad white brow.

Uncle James wondered if Herman knew how pretty Annie could look, when she sat knitting or sewing and telling him pleasant news in the afternoon, or when she ran up in the mornings, from household duties, to bring him a little lunch or some strengthening drink ordered by the doctor.

The great day came in three weeks when Doctor Hodges said his patient might go down stairs again.

"Annie! you are a fairy. Where did you find time for this?" he cried, as Herman tenderly led him to a wide chintz covered arm-chair.

"Mr. Wilson helped me," said Annie, demurely, glancing with pardonable pride around the room she had found so bare and chilly-look.

Now, a neat carpet covered the floor, and snowy curtains were draped from the clear, bright windows. Every inch of paint fairly shone. All the shabby old furniture wore a new dress of gay chintz and the table had a crimson cover that was in itself a furnishing of brightness. On the mantle were vases of quaint old china, long hidden in a corner of the garret, and full of spring flowers; and by Uncle James' chair, a little table bore the backgammon-board, and some new magazines and papers, and a cup of Annie's coffee.

When Uncle James first learned the comforts of a dressing gown, instead of a worn out coat, for house wear, embroidered slippers for old shoes cut down, and other little feminine contrivances quite new to his bachelor experience, I cannot stop to detail. One by one the comforts a loving woman can bring, crept into the old farm-house; and, to the amazement of the owner, the economy of the household more than balanced the additional expenses.

"Eliza never had anything but the plainest food, and spent twice as much as you do with our tempting table."

"Eliza wasted, and I save," said Annie with a smile. "She had not your interests at heart."

"I was nearly frightened when Herman asked me to look over the month's account. So much comfort! My room so neat and pretty, the new china, the kitchen utensils, and so many pretty things to pay for. And yet the income showed a clearer saving."

"A master's eye on the farm," said Annie, modestly.

"And a housekeeper indoors," said the old man affectionately.

"I was brought up to make an invalid's home pleasant," said Annie quietly. "My mother was never very, well and depended on me for such duties as I perform now, even when I was a school-girl. I have not had such a care since she died, but it is quite natural to resume it again."

"Your mother is dead, then?"

"I am an orphan. In the house I left when I came here, I shall scarcely be missed. My aunt, who took me when my mother died, has five daughters'

"Your aunt?"

"Yes! I smell something burning! Let me see if my pies are ruined!" and Annie escaped for the time from questions it was becoming difficult to answer.

The old man sat musing a long time. It was not the first time a vague mistrust of Annie had crossed his mind—a wonder why a woman so gentle and refined, so evidently a lady, was serving in a menial capacity. The first time she had sung for him, in one of his nervous hours of pain, he had noticed she was confused when he spoke of the evident cultivation of her voice.

He had spent much time, while Squire Heyard lived, in the city, and appreciated the difference between country-bred ways and city refinements. As he mused he began to grow restless; and when Herman came in at tea-time, he found his uncle flushed and excited.

In a few words the cause of his agitation was communicated to the young man.

"You think Annie is not what she seems, uncle? You are right. She is here under false pretences."

"Herman!"

"But, putting that aside, what fault have you to find?"

"Fault! I could not find a fault if I tried. She is the most lovable, capable domestic girl I ever saw, as well as a lady in every word and action."

"Then you would like her to stay here if I prove to you she is worthy of your confidence and affection.

"Gladly."

"Even if I deceived you? I knew you would love her, if you would only consent to see her!

"Fanny Miller!"

"Yes! Will you for give me the deception Uncle James?"

"Will you forgive my willful blindness, Herman? No wonder you would not give her up! No wonder you love her! Bring her here, lad; and let me ask her if she will stay, to cheer the short time I may live to see your happiness."

The wedding was not long delayed.—and love are rejuvenating Uncle James, who threatens to prove Doctor Hodges a false prophet yet, who dearly loves to tease Fanny about the way Herman courted his wife.

Marriage and the Death Rate.

The death rate in the married and unmarried was the subject of a paper recently read by M. Bertillon before the Academy of Medicine in Paris. The results are based on statistics derived from France, Belgium and Holland, and are as follows: Of married men between the ages of 25 and 30, the death rate was 4 per thousand, unmarried 10 per thousand widowers 22 per thousand. Of married and unmarried women the rate was the same, viz: 9 per thousand, while in widows it was 17. In persons from 30 to 35 the death rate among married men was 11, the unmarried 5, and the widowers 19 per thousand. Among the women it was five for the married, ten for the unmarried, and fifteen per thousand for the widows. Combining the figures gives the following result: Deaths among men between the ages of 25 and 35—married 15, unmarried fifteen, widowers forty-one; women between the same ages—married fourteen, unmarried nineteen, widows thirty-two. These figures demonstrate that while in the case of men the death-rate was the same throughout the decade for the married and unmarried, there was a great fatality among the widowers. We may therefore, conclude that while the married state does not actively improve the sanitary condition in men, the relapse into the unmarried state is attended by a great fatality.

WE hear those complain most that they get no quiet, whose want of it arises from the eruptions of their own passions.

The St. Gothard Tunnel.

The pass of St. Gothard was the most frequented of all the routes across the Alps until the commencement of the present century; but as it was not practicable for vehicles; it was gradually deserted after the construction, by Napoleon I., of the road over the Simplon. The loss of traffic induced the cantons through which the route passed to construct a carriage road quite as good as that on the Simplon. The work was commenced in 1820, and finished in 1832, and it is one of the greatest monuments of engineering skill to be found in Europe. In magnificence of scenery, the St. Gothard is superior to all of the passes, unless we except the Stelvio. To the mere pleasure seeker it will, therefore, be a matter or regret to see this superb road deserted for a hole through the mountain. Ever since the Mont Cenis tunnel was projected, the Swiss and Germans have felt that a large share of traffic would be diverted to France. For military and strategic reasons, it was, also, felt that equally good facilities ought to be provided on the other side of Switzerland, and all of the necessary surveys were made many years since; but the jealousy of the French, and the fear of that nation has prevented the commencement of the work. The moment, however, that France was powerless to prevent, the project was revived, and we now hear that a contract for the construction of the tunnel has been concluded between the Swiss government and a syndicate of German Bankers under the protection of the imperial government of Germany. The work will be about twice as long as the Mont Cenis tunnel, and it will be considerable more difficult, as it must pass under several rivers and lakes, and encounter the hardest rocks of the Alps. The summit of the present carriage road is 6,760 feet, but the railroad will pass under peaks varying from 8,750 to 10,900. There is no distinct peak of St. Gothard, but an extensive ridge of elevated ground which bears that name.

Geologists will be grealy interested in the work, as this part of Switzerland abounds in a large variety of choice minerals, and some important questions may be solved by the projected work. The total cost is estimated at $37,000,000. Of this amount, the company will raise $20,000,000, leaving the balance to be raised by assessment upon the cantons and countries immediately interested in the project. There is a general belief among engineers that the work will cost much more than the above estimate, but as rich governments stand as security, there seems to be little doubt that the undertaking will be pushed to final completion. The new road will bring Germany and Italy into closer political union and, in the event of war, give these powers a decided military advantage; but this feature of the undertaking is of small importance in comparison with the enormous traffic that will flow through the tunnel between the nations of the North and the remote inhabitants of Asia. Its principal utility will consist in facilitating trade and travel between Europe and Asia, by way of Italy. The extreme Eastern points within its circle of traffic will touch the outstretched hand of our Pacific railroad, and the commerce of the whole world will be benefited by the completion of the gigantic scheme. It is not many years since the river Danbe was the highway for the commerce of the world. The boats, moored at the bridges of Ratisbon, far up in the interior of the Continent, were named by sailors who were the boast of that period, when suddenly, by the discovery of the passage around the Cape of Good Hope, commerce was diverted to new routes, and we have nothing but the ancient bridge and the quaint old storehouse to tell us of the magnificence of the past. The completion of such works as the Suez Canal and the tunnels through the Alps are great illustrations of the triumph of science over all obstacles.

The trade, which, for a time, was diverted to new routes, appears likely to return to its former channels. The Austrian government already have a railroad over the lower Alps, connecting with Trieste and Venice, so that they will profit by the revival of trade in this direction.

It is difficult to anticipate how long it will require to complete the St. Gothard tunnel, but, with improved machinery, and aided by the experience of Mont Cenis, it can hardly endure twice as long as the famous undertaking. It is a bold enterprise, well worthy of the age in which we live.

A SUDDEN and dangerous emergency sometimes brings out peculiar traits of human nature into strong relief. Out in Michigan a few days ago a man and his wife and two men not blessed or burdened with wives went out in a leaky boat which sunk in the river. The husband and one unmarried man struck out vigorously for the shore, while the other stopped and saved the woman at the risk of his own life. Probably the married man knew what he was about but we pity him since his wife was rescued.

A LIBERAL Democrat wants to know "who is this Big Rats Brown?" We believe he belongs to the Brown family, and is running for some kind of an office in Cincinnati.

Romeo.

Death of the Colossus of the Menagerie Sorrow of the Showmen—Something About his Life and Career.

"Romeo," the famous monster elephant whose exploits have gone out through the length and breadth of the land, died in Chicago on Friday week last. He had been ailing for several weeks, his disease being located in the fore feet, which from some unknown cause had become affected with inflammation, resulting in acute pain and a general debilitation of the system, the effect of which had been noticed by a rapid wasting of flesh. An operation was performed upon them a few days previous, but the inflammation continued to extend toward the breast, resulting in his death, as stated. His owner and trainer, Mr. Forepaugh, to whose menagerie he was attached, valued him at fifty thousand dollars, and considered him to be the most intelligent elephant in existence. "Romeo" has an eventful history having killed five keepers since his advent in America, besides destroying any number of fences, barns, garden patches cornfields, orchards, &c. He was purchased by an agent in Calcutta, about twenty-five years ago, having been taken from a brick yard, where he was being used in grinding clay. The price paid for him was $10,000 in gold, and he was brought to America along with nine others. His weight, when in full flesh, was 10,153, pounds, and he stood 11 feet 2½ inches high. He was supposed, by competent elephantine chronologists, to be about one hundred years old. The body has been donated by Mr. Forepaugh to the Chicago Medical College, where the mounted skeleton and stuffed skin will be placed in the anatomical museum.

A Boy's History of Tobacco.

Tobacco, grows something like cabbage, but I never saw none of it boiled although I have eaten boiled cabbage with vinegar on it, and I have heard men say that cigars that were given them on election days were nothing better than cabbage leaves. Tobacco stores are mostly kept by wooden Injuns, who stand at the door and try to fool little boys by offering them a bunch of cigars which is glued to the Injun's hands, and is made of wood also. Hogs do not like tobacco; neither do I. I tried to smoke a cigar once, and it made me feel like epsom salts. Tobacco was invented by a man named Walter Raleigh. When the people first saw him smoking they thought he was a steamboat, and as they never saw one they were frightened. My sister Nancy is a girl. I don't know whether she likes tobacco or not. There is a young man named Leroy who comes to see her. He was standing on the steps one night, and a cigar in his mouth, and she said, "Leroy, the perfume is agreeable." But when my brother Tom lighted his pipe, Nancy said. Get out of the house, you horrid creature, the smell of tobacco makes me sick."

To The Girls.

We have lately seen it stated that in one town, four girls were married at the same hour, about eighteen months ago. Two of them have separated from their husbands, and the other two are trying for divorces. Such things ought to wake up the girls to a sense of their danger. Girls talk and laugh about marriage as though it was a jubilee, a jolly gladsome thing, a rose without a thorn. And so it is, if it is all right, if they go about it as rational beings, instead of merry-making children. It is a serious thing to marry. It is a life business and that of heart and happiness. Therefore, never do it in haste; never run away to get married; never steal a marriage; never marry for wealth, or standing, or fine person, or manners, but only for character, for worth, for the qualities of mind and heart, which make an honorable man. Take time, think long and well before you accept any proposal, consult your parents, then some judicious friend, then your own judgment. Learn all it is possible for you to learn of your proposed husband; when all doubts have been removed, and not till then, accept him.

TO STOP BLEEDING AT THE NOSE.—It is worth while to know how to stop the bleeding from the nose when it becomes excessive. If the finger is pressed firmly upon the little artery which supplies blood to the side of the face affected the result is accomplished. Two small arteries, branching up from the main arteries on each side of the neck, and passing over the outside of the jaw-bone, supply the face with blood. If the nose bleeds from the right nostril, for example pass the finger along the edge of the right jaw till the beating of the artery is felt. Press hard upon it, and the bleeding will cease. Continue the pressure five minutes, until the ruptured vessels in the nose have time to contract.

THE newly opened sandstone quarries in Will county, Illinois, bid fair to become the most extensive in the world. The sandstones is of a blueish color, perfectly solid, and is being used extensively in the rebuilding of Chicago. Several heavy firms are engaged in developing the quarries.

THE SITUATION.

Last week we visited Harrisburg, and while there, met and conversed with men from nearly every county in the State. They were honest, clear headed men who have stood at the helm of the great Republican ship and participated in all the struggles and battles in behalf of Republicanism and liberty, which have occurred within the last twelve years. Many of them bore honorable scars and werethe heroes of twenty or more fiercely contested battles in the late war to preserve the Union and the life of this great and munificent Government. These men understand. and are perfectly familiar with, the politics of their respective counties. They have, as every good American citizen should do, to a greater or less extent made politics a study and are therefore strong and influential, perfectly competant to give correct views of the political situation.

From all parts of the State the story was the same. No disaffection, in the ranks, and no Republican Greeley men. The report of each was, that all was enthusiasm for Hartranft, Allen and the whole State, and National ticket.

The little schism in the counties of Lancaster, Deleware, Luzerne and Allegheny, is greatly exaggerated, by the Phila., Press, Lancaster Express and three or four other papers which take their cue from Jno. W. Forney. Lancaster county we were assured would do much better than she did last fall and the prospect was bright for a settlement of the whole difficulty, small though it be, and the party made harmonious—a unite for Hartranft and the entire ticket.

There are a few disaffected, disappointed, defaulting, thieving politicians, who may not come in. These will go over with Mr. Greeley, to the Democratic party. They are Liberals now, because they are sore-heads, and they are sore-heads and out of office, because they were not true to their trusts, and the confidence bestowed upon, and placed in them by either the State, or National Government. It is safe to affirm that nine tenths of all the men who now join in the Liberal movement, and in the unmanly and cowardly crusade upon Gen. Hartranft, have either been disappointed in obtaining the offices desired by them, or have been turned out of office in consequence of dishonesty and reckless, thieving propensities. Even the great Forney, is said not to be able to show a clear sheet in his connection with the Collectors office in Phila. This may account for his apparent support of Grant and Wilson. We say apparent support, because any thinking mind can easily see, that he cannot be true to Grant, nor honest in his support, so long as he continues to oppose a portion of the State ticket. Forney in 1868 frequently declared through his Press and from the stump, that it was impossible to carry the election in November unless we were victorious in October. He is too shrewd a politician to think differently now, hence we argue that he is not honest in his support of Gen. Grant, and only seeks to damn him by feint praise.

Forney is a disappointed man. His ambition has been for years and now is, to be elected to the United States Senate. He cares nothing for the dear people. His actions show that he cares nothing for the National ticket, nor the peace, harmony and success of the Republican party in Pennsylvania. He is for Col. Jno. W. Forney first, last and all the time. His cry of personal rule in the State is only a pretext.

We have it from the most reliable authority that he was present at the Reading convention; that he there and then aided in the slaughter of Gen. Cass and his friends and entered into covenant with the Democrats to support Charles R. Buckalew for Governor, if the Democrats would elect Jno. W. Forney United States Senator next winter. This is why Cass was defeated. This is the reason why Mr. Buckalew was nominated. And this is the cause and the only true cause of Mr. Forney's onslaught upon Gen. Jno. F. Hartranft. There is but six of a majority to overcome in the Legislature—the lower house—and with the great reformer A. K. McClure in the Senate, and Buckalew elected Governor, Jno. W. Forney expects to be elected U. S. Senator by the Democrats.

"Then he put in his thumb
And he took out a plum,
Saying what a nice boy am I."

This is the situation and this the true secret of Forney's disaffection. He has attempted to sell out the great Republican party, destroy its organization and finally close the eyes of the people to his treachery, by the pusillanimous cry of "corruption," "personal rule," and "Halt," or stop thief.

There always has been such men and always will be. All great and victorious parties are cursed with them. And when the christian church was composed of but twelve disciples, one of them was a Judas. He went out and hung himself. Will Jno. W. Forney profit by the lesson?

There are some men who prefer to rule in hell rather than serve in heaven—modern Lucifers in fact, who do not subscribe to the doctrine of Elihu Burritt "That it is better to be a part of a great whole, than to be the whole of a little nothing:" but on the contrary, they must dictate the platform of their party even should it result in leaving themselves alone, to stand upon it when constructed. We pity Jno. W. Forney from the depths of our heart. We are sorry that a man so talented should be so corrupt. We deeply regret that he should so far forget himself as to permit his vanity, egotism and selfishness to steal away his brains, and leave him poor indeed—sans principle, sans friends, sans the U. S. Senatorship, sans anything that ennobles and makes men great.

It has been said that "An honest man is the noblest work of God." John W. Forney, the same erratic and doubtful politician above referred to, did himself declare in the Phila. Press of the 5th of June, that Gen. Jno. F. Hartranft "Was a brave soldier and an honest man."

The people of Pennsylvania have twice, in thunder tones, at and through the ballot box by overwhelming majorities declared Gen. Jno. F. Hartranft, an honest man.

And last winter the committee of which Senator Graham, a Democrat, was chairman, appointed to investigate the Evans Swindle, unanimously acquitted him from all blame, after the most close and scrutenizing investigation; thus declaring Gen. Hartranft an honest man.

The Legislators of the State, when the duty devolved upon them to appoint some person to fill the vacancy in the Auditor Generals office occasioned by the death of Dr. Stanton, did almost unanimously and without regard to party predilections, vote for the continuance of Gen. Jno. F. Hartranft in the office until his successor should be elected; thus declaring our candidate for Governor a most pure and efficient officer, and an honest man.

And now we say, if Gen. Jno. F. Hartranft is not an honest man, then God Almighty has long since ceased to make them. A brave soldier, the participant in a score of bloody battles, the hero of Fort Steadman, will not be permitted by the honest and patriotic people of Pennsylvania, to suffer defeat at the polls, this fall. Gen. Hartranft is the unmoved rock, washed whiter, but not shaken with the shock of Forney's pop-gun.

Gen. Hartranft, Allen and the whole Republican ticket, must and will be elected no matter who composes, it, because the perpetuity of the Government and the prosperity and peace of the nation require it. And just so long as the soldiers orphans are to be seen every day in our midst; just so long as our eyes must gaze upon the crippled soldiers—the one armed and one legged men, who suffered so much and so patiently to prevent the Democratic party North and South from destroying our liberties just so long, will the patriots of the land refuse to listen to the syren voice of the charmer, or permit the men who represent the principles of the Republican organization to be defeated or stricken down. This is the situation and this the prophecy. Our hope is in the God of Nations and in the honest yeomanry of the land.

"Great God we thank thee for this home—
This bounteous birthland of the free;
Where wanderers from afar may come,
And breath the air of liberty!—
Still may her flowers untrampled spring,
Her harvests wave, her cities rise;
And yet, till Time shall fold his wing,
Remain Earth's loveliest Paradise!

THE secret pleasure of a generous act is the great mind's great bribe.

MR. WILSON'S LETTER OF ACCEPTANCE.

Below we give the eloquent letter of the Hon. Henry Wilson in reply to the notification of the committee that he had received the nomination for Vice President at Philadelphia. It will repay a careful perusal:

WASHINGTON, June 14, 1872.

To the Hon. Thomas Settle and others President and Vice President of the National Republican Convention held at Philadelphia on the 5th and 6th of the present month,

GENTLEMEN: Your note of the 10th instant, conveying to me the action of the convention in placing my name in nomination for the office of Vice President of the United States, is before me. I need not give you assurance of my grateful appreciation of the high honor conferred upon me by this action of the Fifth National Convention of the Republican party.

Sixteen years ago, in the same city, was held the first meeting of the men who, amid the darkness and doubts of that hour of slaveholding ascendancy and aggression, had assembled in national convention to confer with each other upon the exigencies into which, that fearful domination had brought their country. After full conference, the highest point of resolve they could reach, the most they dared to recommend, was the avowed purpose to prohibit the existence of slavery in the Territories. Last week the same party met by its representatives from thirty-seven States and ten Territories at the same great centre of wealth, intelligence and power, to review the past, take note of the present, and indicate its line of action for the future. As typical facts—headlands of the nation's recent history—there sat on its platform, taking prominent and honorable part in its proceedings; admitted on terms of perfect equality to the leading hotels of the city; not only the colored representatives of the race which were ten years before in abject slavery, but one of the oldest and most prominent of the once despised abolitionists, to whom was accorded, as to no other, the warmest demonstrations of popular regard and esteem—an ovation not to him alone, but to the cause he had so ably, and for so many years represented, and to the men and women, living and dead, who had toiled through long years of obloquy and self-sacrifice for the glorious fruitions of that hour. It hardly needed the brilliant summary of its platform to set forth its illustrious achievements. The very presence of those men was alone significant of the victories already achieved, the progress already made, and the great distance which the nation had traveled between the years of 1856 and 1872.

But grand has been its record. The Republican party rests not on its past alone. It looks to the future and grapples with its problems of duty and of danger. It proposes as objects of its immediate accomplishment "complete liberty and exact equality" for all; the enforcement of "the recent amendments to the National Constitution; reforms in the "civil service," the "national domain to be set apart for homes to the people;" the adjustment of duties on imports so as to secure "remunerative wages to labor;" the extension of boundary to all soldiers and sailors "who in the line of duty became disabled;" the continual and careful encouragement and protection of voluntary immigration and the guarding "with jealous care the rights of adopted citizens;" the abolition of the franking privilege and "the speedy reduction of the rates of postage;" the reduction of the national debt and the rates of interest and "the resumption of specie payment;" the encouragement of American commerce and of shipbuilding; the suppression of violence and "the protection of the ballot box." It also placed on record the opinions and purposes of the party in favor of amnesty against all forms of repudation, and indorsed the humane and peaceful policy of the Administration in regard to the Indians.

But while clearly defining and distinctly announcing the policy of the Republican party on these questions of practical legislation and administration, the convention did not ignore the great social problems which are pressing their claims for solution, and which demand the most careful study and wise consideration. Foremost stands the labor question-concerning "the relations of capital and labor." The Republican party accepts the duty of "so shaping legislation as to secure the full protection and the amplest field for capital, and for labor, the creator of capital, the largest opportunities and a just share of the mutual profits of these two great servants of civilization."

To woman' too, and her new demands, it extends the hand of grateful recognition, and proffers its most respectful inquiry. It recognizes her noble devotion to the country and freedom, welcomes her admission to "wider fields of usefullness," and commends her demands for "additional rights" to the calm and careful consideration of the nation.

To guard well what has already been secured, to work out faithfully and wisely what is now in hand, and to consider the questions which are looming up to view but a little way before us, the Repulbican party is to-day what it was in the gloomy years of slavery, rebellion and reconstruction, a national necessity.

It appeals, therefore, for support to the patriotic and liberty-loving, to the just and humane, to all who would dignify labor, to all who would educate, elevate and lighten the burdens of the sons and daughters of toil. With its great record the work still to be done under the lead of the great soldier, whose historic renown, and whose successful administration for the last three years begat such popular confidence, the Republican party may confidently, in the language of the convention you represent "start upon a new march to victory."

Having accepted thirty-six years ago the distinguishing doctrines of the Republican party of to-day; having during years of that period, for their advancement, subordinated all other issues acting in and cooperating with political organizations, with whose leading doctrines I sometimes had neither sympathy for many years to found and build up the Republican party, and having, during its existence, taken an humble part in its grand work, I gratefully accept the nomination thus tendered, and shall endeavor, if it shall be ratified by the people, faithfully to perform the duties it imposes. Respectfully yours,

HENRY WILSON.

A good sewing Machine I long have sought,
And tried them all but found it not,
Until the New Victor it came out,
And now I have one without a doubt.

It runs so easy and sews so nice,
I would not be without it for any price.
Its self-setting needle is so neat,
And everything else is most complete.

It sews through thin, it sews through thick,
And when you sew it never sticks,
So when you sew, you have no trouble—
I'd have a VICTOR if it's price were double.

READ! READ! READ!

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO ALL WHO ARE IN WANT OF A SEWING MACHINE.

The New Sewing Machine VICTOR has not its equal in the world for family sewing. It is made of the finest material and of most perfect finish, and no pains or expense is spared to make the Victor Sewing Machine, in all its points, fitted to meet the wants of every family in the land.

TWELVE GOOD REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD BUY THE VICTOR:

1.—It is the only Lock-Stitch Machine that has its needle Self-Setting.
2.—All lost motion can be readily taken up in all its parts.
3.—The needle being Straight, and Self-Setting, much of the perplexity and trouble to new beginners is avoided, as the needle cannot be set wrong.
4.—It has a positive Thread Controller and Tension, which enables it to sew with equal precision, from the most delicate texture to the heaviest material.
5.—It uses with equal facility Silk, Linen, or Cotton Thread.
6.—It uses the same size thread on the under as on the upper side, and sews across the heaviest seam, or from one to many thicknesses of cloth, without change of needle, tension or thread.
7.—There are no springs or cog wheels to break and get out of order.
8,—It is the simplest and strongest family sewing machine of all the varieties now in use.
9.—Every motion is positive, and it runs light and easy.
10.—The shuttle is carried on an independent table, which prevents its wearing out, and at the same time does away with oiling, thus avoiding greasing the work.
11.—It is simple in its construction, and the most inexperienced person can operate and regulate it.
12.—Its price is as low as any other first-class machine, and should be tried by all who want a good, reliable machine. This new machine can be seen at the large Ware Room, where all are invited to call and see it operate. Having confidence that the Victor will meet with public favor, we are willing, when parties desire to purchase, to send it to their homes on trial, with complete instructions how to use it. Every Machine is Warranted. Traveling Agents Wanted.

MRS. IRWIN'S BUILDING, ALLEGHENY St., BELLEFONTE, PA.

The Grape-Vine In Summer.

Perhaps the most serious difficulty the vine grower—whether he has a single vine or a thousond—has to contend with, is mildew. The trouble with this is that its approach is so insidious that the mischief is done before the inexperienced cultivator. A discolored spot upon the upper part of the leaves is seen, in few days this becomes brown, and the leaf, if severely attacked, curls up and dies. Mildew not only attacks the leaves but the fruit clusters and the young wood. It may be arrested if attacked in time. The vines should be frequently watched, and if grayish patches appear upon the under side of the leaves, upon the stems of the bunches indeed, if they are found anywhere, apply sulphur immediately. Do not await until the next day, nor even the next hour, but apply at once. So certain a remedy is sulphur, and so very apt are vines to be attacked by mildew, that many grape-growers find it to their advantage to pursue a systematic sulphurizing, whether indications of mildew are visible or not. The vines dusted as soon as the leaves expand, when they are in flower, when the berries are of the size of peas, and when the fruit begins to color. This is done regularly, and if any signs of mildew are seen in the intervals, sulphurising is immediately resorted to.

Flower of sulphur is the form in which it is used, and it is best applied by a bellows. There are blowers and other implements in use, but a properly constructed bellows, such as may be had at the implement and seed stores, is the most convnient for applying it. The bellows having a curved nozzle allows the under-side of the leaves to be dusted, which is very important. The application should be made on a dry day, and if the rain should wash away the sulphur soon after it is applied, the dusting should be renewed. One, with a little practice, can so manage the bellows as to throw the sulphur in a fine cloud of dust, which will settle upon and cover all parts of the vine with an evenly distributed but almost imperceptible coating. Next in destructiveness to the mildew come the hordes of insects. The most effectual remedy for the majority of these is hand picking. Old vines especially are disposed to push out adventitious buds and form branches where they are not needed. These should be rubbed off.

THE FIRST PRAYER IN CONGRESS.—The following is the first prayer made in the old Continental Congress, in 1777 by the Rev. Jacob Duchet, then Rector of Christ church Philadelphia:

"Be Thou present, O God of wisdom and direct the counsels of this honorable assembly; enable them to settle all things on the best and surest foundation that the scene of blood may be speedily closed. that order, harmony and peace may be effectually restored, and truth and justice, religion and piety prevaile and flourish among the people. Preserve the health of their bodies and the vigor of their minds; shower down on them, and the millions they here represent, such temporal blessings as thou seest expedient for them in this world and crown them with everlasting glory in the world to come. All this we ask in the name and through the merits of Jesus Christ, Thy Son and our Saviour, Amen."

Dry Earth For Poultry Houses.

The employment of dry, pulverized earth as the means of deodorizing poultry houses, appears to be worthy of more attention than it has hitherto received. The fact that from four to five hundred fowls can, by this aid, be kept in one building for months together, with less smell than is to be found in any ordinary fowl house capable of accomodating a dozen chickens, is very conclusive as to its efficacy. In the building of the National Company, where this fact has been ascertained, seven or eight fowls are kept each compartment twelve feet by three, and yet there is no smell or trace of moisture. Mr. Greylin informs us that if a larger number are put into each run, the grounds becomes moist, cases to deodorize, and the birds at once become unhealthy. It should be stated that the droppings that fall from the perches during the night are removed from the runs each morning and the dry earth only receives the manure that falls during the day; this has its moisture absorbed so speedily by the earth that it at once becomes pulverized, mixed with the soil, and ceases to smell. So powerful is the deodorizing effects of the earth that it does not require to be renewed in the runs for many weeks together.

OVERGROWN HOGS.—There is not one single advantage to be claimed in favor of big hogs. There was never a monster hog which did not make the man who raised him pay for every pound he weighed.

They do not furnish an ounce of meat gratis. but charge full price for every atom of their carcass. When slaughtered, it takes a long time to get one cool to the marrow in the bone, and then when the hams are put in salt, it is troublesome to finish them to the centre. Four hundred pounds live weight is as large as hogs should be, in order to make good bacon.

Beyond this size there is a loss somewhere. Either the feeder, butcher or consumer is cheated, and as a general thing every one who has any thing to do with the big hog will find, if he observes closely, that they are not so profitable as the smooth, nice hogs of only 350 pounds weight. A small head, with little, upright ears, and legs and eyes delicate to perfection, are marks which indicate the greatest amount of food consumed; and will always draw more readily the attention of the butcher.

WATER FOR SHEEP.—It is believed by some that water, as a drink, is wholly or quite unnecessary for sheep. No one could make a greater mistake than to believe the idea above. If sheep are allowed access to water, they will be as regular in drinking as other stock. A regular supply of water throughout the winter as well as summer, should be regarded as indispensible for the welfare of our flocks. Every flock master is aware of the difference there will be in the condition of sheep that have, and of those that have not been watered during a winter; although the latter may seem to be in fair condition as they would have been had they been watered daily. Sheep that are yarded during the winter, and fed on dry feed, need much less water than those, that are allowed to range over a large pasture, or fed on roots and other moist feed.

OATS FOR LAMBS.—The importance of having lambs ready for market at as early a period of the season as possible, is a matter which every farmer who lives in the vicinity of large markets understands, or at least ought to. It may perhaps not be known to all farmers, that lambs are able to eat oats when from three to four weeks old, and my experience has been that there is no provender with the use of which I am familiar, that appears to have such immediate and salutary effect upon them. All that is necessary to be done is to moisten the oats and place them in a trough raised about six or eight inches from the floor, and where the old sheep cannot get at them. Those who are skeptical in regard to this matter, can very readily test the value of this suggestion on a single lamb or a pair.

CHEAP PAINTT.—A cheap paint may be made for out buildings that will do for years by taking milk and cement—or "water lime" as some call it; any dry color may be added. This will last for years, and by renueing once in two or three years, a building will look as well as if painted with oil paint. To put this on, the paint should be stirred constantly, or the finer parts will all soon be used, out, and at last you will have nothing but sand. Have a boy to stir it all the time; mix often.

Hoofland's German Bitters.

A Bitters without Alcohol or Spirits of any kind.

Is different from all others. It is composed of the pure Juices, or VITAL PRINCIPLE OF ROOTS, HERBS, and BARKS, (or, as medicinally termed, Extracts,) the worthless or inert portions of the ingredients not being used. Therefore in one Bottle of this Bitters there is contained as much medicinal virtue as will be found in several gallons or ordinary mixtures. The Roots, &c., used in this Bitters are grown in Germany, their vital principles extracted in that country by a scientific Chemist, and forwarded to the manufactory in this city, when they compouuded and bottled. Containing no spirituous ingredients, this Bitters is free from the objections urged against all others: no desire for stimulants can be induced from their use, they cannot make drunkards, and cannot under any circustances, have any but a beneficial effect.

Hoofland's German Tonic,

Was compounded for those not inclined to extreme bitters, and is intended for use in cases when some alcoholic stimulant is required in connection with the Tonic properties of the Bitters. Each bottle of the tonic contains one bottle of the Bitters, combined with pure SANTA CRUZ RUM, and flavored in such a manner that the extreme bitterness of the bitters is overcome forming a preparation highly agreeable and pleasant to the palate, and containing the medicinal virtues of the Bitters. The price of the Tonic is $1,50 per Bottle, which many persons think too high. They must take into consideration that the stimulant used is guaranteed to be of a pure quality. A poor article could be furnished at a cheaper price, but is it not better to pay a little more and have a good article? A medicinal preparation should contain none but the best ingredients; and they who expect to obtain a cheap compound, and be benefittad by it, will most certainly be cheated.

PHILADELPHIA, March 16, 1871.

I find "Hoofland's German Bitters" is a good tonic, useful in diseases of the digestive organs, and of great benefit in case of debility and want of nervous action in the system. Yours, truly,
GEO. W. WOODWARD.

HON. JAS. THOMPSON, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

PHILADELPHIA, April 28, 1867.

I consider "Hoofland's German Bitters" a valuable medicine in case of attacks of indigestion or Dyspepsia. I can certify this from my own experience of it.
Yours, with respect, JAS. THOMPSON.

HON. GEORGE SHARSWOOD, Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

PHILADELPHIA, June 1, 1868.

I have found by experience that "Hoofland's German Bitters" is a very good tonic, relieving dyspeptic symptoms almost directly.
GEORGE SHARSWOOD

HON. JAS. M. WOOD, Ex-Mayor of Williamsport, Pa.

I take great pleasure in recommending "Hoofland's German Tonic" to any one who may be afflicted with Dyspepsia. I had the Dyspepsia so badly it was impossible to keep any food on my stomach, and I became so week, as not to be able to walk half a mile. Two bottles of Tonic effected a perfect cure.

DR. HOOFLAND'S
PODOPHYLLIN,
Or Substitue for Mercury Pills.
TWO PILLS A DOSE.
The Most Powerful, Yet Innocent Vegetable Cathartic Known.

It is not necessary to take a handful of these Pills to produce the desired effect; two of them act quickly and powerfully, cleansing the Liver, Stomach and Bowels all impurities. The principal ingredient is Podophyllin, or the Alcoholic Extract of Mandrake, which is by many times more powerful, acting and searching than the Mandrake itself. Its peculiar action is upon the Liver, cleaning it speedily from all obstructions, with all the power of Mercury, yet free from the injurious results attached to the use of that mineral.

For all diseases, in which the use of a cathartic is indicated, these pills will give entire satisfaction in every case. They NEVER FAIL.

In cases of Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia and extreme costiveness, Dr. Hoofland's German Bitters or Tonic should be used in connection with the Pills. The tonic effect of the Bitters or Tonic builds up the system. The Bitters or Tonic purifies the Blood, strengthens the Nerves, REGULATES the Liver, and gives strength, energy and vigor.

Keep your Bowels active with the Pills, and tone up the system with Bitters or Tonic, and no disease can retain its hold, or even assail you.

Recollect that it is DR. HOOFLAND'S GERMAN REMEDIES that are so universally used and highly recommended; and do not allow the Druggist to induce you to take anything else that he may say is just as good, because he makes a larger profit on it. VINEGAR BITTERS
PURELY VEGETABLE
FREE FROM ALCOHOL
DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
EUREKA
VINEGAR BITTERS

Vinegar Bitters are not a vile Fancy Drink, made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors, doctored, spiced, and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the native roots and herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the Great Blood Purifier and a Life-giving Principle, a Perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition, enriching it, refreshing and invigorating both mind and body. They are easy of administration, prompt in their action, certain in their results, safe and reliable in all forms of disease.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain longun well, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Billious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. In these complaints it has no equal, and one bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that a marked improvement is soon perceptible.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs and in Bilious Diseases.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-Head, Sore Eyes Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effects.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. Says a distinguished physiologist: There is scarcely an individual on the face of the earth whose body is exempt from the presence of worms. It is not upon the healthy elements of the body that worms exist, but upon the diseased humors and slimy deposits that breed these living monsters of disease. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelminitics, will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS twice a week.

Bilious, Remittent, and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc., etc. In these as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

Dr. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters act on all these cases in a similar manner. By purifying the Blood they remove the cause, and by resolving away the effects of the inflammation (the tubercular deposits) the affected parts receive health, and a permanent cure is effected.

The properties of DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS are Aperient, Diaphoretic, Carminative, Nutritious, Laxative, Diuretic, Sedative, Counter-Irritant, Sudorific, Alterative, and Anti-Bilious.

The Aperient and mild Laxative properties of DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS are the best safe-guard in cases of eruptions and malignant fevers, their balsamic, healing, and soothing properties protect the humors of the fauces. Their Sedative properties allay pain in the nervous system, stomach, and bowels, either from inflammation, wind, colic, cramps, etc.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Directions.—Take of the Bitters on going to bed at night from a half to one and one-half wine-glassfull. Eat good nourishing food, such as beef-steak, mutton chop, venison, roast beef, and vegetables, and take out-door exercise. They are composed of purely vegetable ingredients, and contain no spirit.

REPUBLICAN STATE PLATFORM.

Below will be found the Resolutions adopted by the convention which placed in nomination Gen John F. Hartranft, Hon. Ulysses Mercur, Gen. Harrison Allen and the entire State Ticket. The Resolutions were written by that clear headed and efficient Republican—Russel Errett, Esq., and have the true ring. Republicans, workingmen and all honest Democrats, can safely stand upon this platform. Let them be carried out in good faith and there need be no fears entertained in regard to the salvation and perpetuity of the government either State or national:

1. That we reaffirm our devotion to the principles of the Republican party, and our belief that the continued existence of that party is necessary to the maintenance and success of those principles. The grand and fundamental idea of the equality of all men in political rights is not professed by any other party, and can be sustained faithfully only by those who are sincerely committed to it.

2. That the adoption of the thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth amendments to the Constitution of the United States has not been sufficiently acquiesced in by all to render certain and secure their permanent incorporation in that instrument, and hence the administration of the government can safely be entrusted only to that party which is heartily, and beyond question, committed to them, and the policy necessary to put them into successful operation.

3. That we are now, more than ever, called to sustain the policy of national protection to American industry. If the laborer is worthy of his hire, and a fair day's work entitles the worker to a fair day's pay, we must continue to throw the protecting arm of the government around those who toil for their daily bread. The protective policy alone makes labor contented and capital secure. It renders employment certain, and pay ample and satisfactory; whilst free trade means that our laborers and mechanics must either work for lower wages or that our factories should be closed through foreign competition, and the workingmen of the country deprived of employment.

4. That the public lands belong to the people, and should be reserved for the people. We, therefore, pronounce most decidedly against any further appropriation of the public lands in behalf of corporations or individuals. All lands not sold according to law should be open to preemption and actual settlement.

5. That we demand a continued adherence to the policy hitherto pursued, under Republican auspices, in our State and in the nation, of a steady and gradual reduction of the public debt. The interests of the people require that the most rigid economy should be practiced in the administration of both the Nation and the State governments, and that taxes should be reduced in both as rapidly as is consistent with the honorable maintenance of the public credit, and the certain extinguishment of all the public debt.

6. That we are earnestly in favor of the earliest possible removal of the duties on tea and coffee, and urge the prompt passage of the bill for that purpose now before Congress.

7. That we heartily approve of the act of Gen. Grant in giving a trial to the plan of civil service reform. We demand that the plan, or any other that may be substituted in its place as better, shall have a fair and unembarrassed trial, that every effort shall be made to secure competent men for public service, and that honesty and incorruptibility shall be deemed qualifications as essential as competency and intelligence.

8. That the Republican party has given full evidence during the past eleven years of its ability to administer the government honestly, faithfully and successfully. It has, within that time, maintained the honor of our National flag at home and abroad; preserved the Union from disruption and restored it in its integrity; secured to all classes and conditions of men the rights given to them by their Maker, and having proclaimed liberty throughout all the land, unto all the inhabitants thereof, has given to that proclamation the full effect to which it was entitled; and we therefore, in its name, claim from the people a continuance of their confidence, and fearlessly challenge their scrutiny into its acts.

9. That we point with pride to the record of Gen. Grant's administration of the National Government. Not only has the weight of internal taxation been almost wholly removed from the people's shoulders, but three hundred millions of the national debt have been paid off—a result never before attained by any other people under like circumstances, and for which we are indebted to the rigid honesty, strict economy and sterling integrity which the President has brought to the administration of a national affairs.

10. That we present his name for renomination to the Presidency, confident that the people will again rally to the support of the man who so nobly fought their battles; who, under the guidance through its struggle to maintain its existence, and who has since so successfully administered the affairs of the government as to command general admiration, at home and abroad.

11. That we will stand by the government in the foreign policy so firmly marked out and adhered to by President Grant. The honor of the nation, we feel, is safe in his hands, and the flag under which he never suffered defeat, will not be dishonored while he is kept in the front.

12. That we congratulate the people of Pennsylvania on the final accomplishment of the call for a convention to revise and amend the Constitution of the State and we earnestly urge upon our friends to see that delegates are chosen in their respective districts committed to the policy of incorporating in that instrument a clear and decisive prohibition of special legislation.

13 That we hereby declare our opposition to every effort to withdraw from the sinking fund of the Commonwealth, either by substitution, exchange or otherwise, any of the bonds, securities or moneys now pledged to it, and through it to the payment of the public debt of the Commonwealth, and our inflexible determination to preserve the same, inviolably, for the fulfillment of the Commonwealth's obligations.

14. That the oil producing, mining, lumbering and manufacturing interest of the State require protection from the efforts of dangerous combinations, and that such laws should be enacted by the General Assembly of this Commonwealth as will protect said interest, both in their development and the transportation of their productions to market.

15. That the thanks of our party are due to Governor John W. Geary, under whose lead our principles have twice been successfully vindicated in Pennsylvania; the State debt has been reduced during his administration; our soldiers orphans have been carefully cherished and educated; and our laws have been efficiently and wisely enforced. Under the necessity of parting with him as Governor, in conformity with the Constitution of the State, Governor Geary carries with him in his retirement the heartfelt wishes of its people for his future prosperity and happiness.

16. That we present with peculiar pride and especial confidence of their success, the names of Gen. John F. Hartranft for Governor, Ulysses Mercur for Supreme Judge, Gen. Harrison Allen for Auditor General, and the gentlemen this day named for delegates at large to the Constitutional Convention. They are all men worthy of an active and ardent support at the hands of the Republican party, and we call upon our friends throughout the State to rally as one man to secure their triumphant election.

17. That the President of this Convention, in connection with the candidates this day nominated for State officers appoint the chairman and one Secretary of the State Central Committee, and that the State Committee be made up on the basis adopted last year, and the two years preceding.

Wednesday Morning, June 26th, 1872.

NEWSPAPER LAWS.

We would call the special attention of post-masters and our subscribers to the following synopsis of the newspaper laws:

1. A postmaster is required to give notice by letter, (returning a paper does not answer the law,) when a subscriber does not take his paper out of the office, and state the reasons for its not being taken; and a neglect to do so makes the postmaster responsible to the publishers for is payment.
2. Any person who takes a paper from the post-office, whether directed to his name or another's, or whether he has subscribed or not, its reponsible for the payment.
3. If a person orders his paper to be discontinued, he must pay all arrearages, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made, and collect the whole amount, whether it be taken from the office or not. There can be no legal discontinuance until the payment is made.
4. If the subscriber orders the paper to be stopped at a certain time, and the publisher continues to send it, the subscriber is bound to pay for it, if he takes it out of the post-office. The law proceeds upon the ground that a man must pay for what he uses.
5. The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers and periodicals from the post-office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, is prima-facie evidence of intentional fraud

Lodge Directory.

Bellefonte Lodge, No. 268, A. Y. M., meets on Tuesday evening, at 7 o'clock, on or before each full moon, in Bush's Arcade.

Constans Commandery, No. 33, K. T., meets the second Tuesday evening of each month, in Bush's Arcade.

SEVERAL communications hung over until next week.

REV. D. C. BABCOCK will preach a temperance sermon at 10½ o'clock A. M. in the M. E. Church, on Sunday next.

THE FOURTH.—There will be a good time in Tyrone on the 4th of July. Grand firemen and citizens pic-nic hop &c.

THE greatest novelty at the Gilmore Peace Jubilee in Boston last week was Wood's famous "Song of a Shirt," performed on a Sewing Machine—a Singer of course.

BOOTS & SHOES.—B. L. Batcheller & Co will open their new Boston Boot & Shoe store, in No 5, Bush's Arcade next door to Zimmerman Bro & Co., on next Saturday. They have a fine stock. Advertisement next week, when we will have more to say.

RAIN.—We were blessed with a good warm rain on Monday last. It commenced raining before daylight and continued all day, and Tuesday all day, up to the time of going to press. We should always learn to trust Providence, and not grumble too soon.

NEW HOUSE.—Most people get the cage, afterwards the bird; but Mr. Andrew Cook one of the most exemplary young men of our town first took unto himself a wife, and immediately set about building a new house. He has chosen a location immediately opposite the residence of J. D. Shugert, Esq.

AHEAD.—We understand that J. B. Hahn the enterprising merchant of Milesburg is selling more goods than any of his competitors. This we can easily understand. First, he is a good fellow; second, he advertises in the REPUBLICAN; and third, he sells cheap, and good goods, just what he promises to do in the advertisement.

WHEAT.—Jno. I. Thompson, Esq., farmer, merchant, dealer in lumber, &c., at Martha Furnace this county, has the largest and best field of wheat between his place and Harrisburg. We judge the field contains about 60 Acres. This puts Bald Eagle Valley ahead. Good farmer, you know: He can beat Horace.

ACCIDENT.—Wm. Emenhizer, a resident of Boggs twp. near Marsh Creek, who has been engaged in chopping wood for the Messrs Valentines, was badly hurt on Tuesday the 18th inst. He and his brother George were using the cross cut saw on a large tree, and when the log or cut was severed, it being on a hill-side, it rolled over him, badly bruising one of his shoulders. His face was not injured.

AN EDITOR.—One of the most intelligent and wealthy young lady's of Bellefonte asked us a few days ago, if we could not make an Editor of her brother. She said she would like to have a brother, an Editor. Who will dare say that she is not intelligent above her class, or the circle in which she mover. Most people turn up their noses at mechanics, printers and editors. She does not.

RED MEN.—Through the kindness of W. H. H. Brainerd, the efficient and gentlemanly Editor of the Tyrone Herald we were permitted to get a view of the Red Men's Hall in that city. It is not only a curiosity; but romantically beautiful. The frescoing and all the work upon the Hall which is most exquisite, was done by the members of the Order. Persons visiting Tyrone should visit this Hall. There are but two in the State which surpasses it in beauty and finish.

A STABBING AFFAIR.—One of those unfortunate occurrances, of which whiskey is frequently the cause transpired at the depot in Snow Shoe about 6 o'clock on Saturday evening last. The facts, as near as we could gather them, are about as follows: Thos. Hickey the perpetrator of the deed went to a store in Snow Shoe in the morning and purchased a large knife, declaring, at the same time, he would kill the first man who crossed his path. He grossly insulted two men who, it appears walked away from him without resenting it. In the evening Albert Rider, who had been in Bellefonte with Martin Murphy, upon getting out of the cars at the depot was insulted by this man. The language used need not be published here. Without any provocation whatever, he approached Mr. Rider where he was standing on the platform of the Depot building and stabbed him. Mr. Rider being a powerful man, seized Hickey by the neck and choked him until he fainted and the knife fell out of his hand. They both fell at the same time, Rider never to rise again unaided. The loss of blood being so great as to prevent any favorable re-action.

The cut commenced four inches above the knee in the middle line of the thigh and ran inward, and upward across the leg, several inches cutting down to the bone and opening the large femoral artery. The blood gushed out in a torrent until he fainted. Dr. Jackson was on the ground and offered the dying man no assistance; but deliberately walked away. Mr. Lucas tied a stout handkerchief above the wound and twisted it with a stick, and thus arrested the bleeding. In a few minutes Dr. Glenn was there and put on a Tournequet, which secured the vessel from any further bleeding. The Drs. Hays were immediately telegraphed for; but it was too late. The man was dead. Mr. Rider never reacted, the loss of blood being too excessive. He died at 3 o'clock, A. M., Sunday. Thus has another murder been committed in our midst. Shall the murderer be punished? We shall add nothing to prejudice the case.

TANNERY.—The Bald Eagle Tannery situated in Tyrone City, and owned by D. P. Ray, Esq., is, we think, the largest establishment of the kind in Central Pennsylvania. There are three large buildings three stories devoted to the purposes of tanning, containing vats, leather house, dry house, engine house, &c., and a bark house of sufficient capacity to hold 6,000 cords of bark. In company with Mr. Brainerd of the Herald we were through it from garret to cellar and we can say without exaggeration that we never saw any Tannery so well arranged for labor saving purposes, and never so great a quantity of Oak and hemlock tanned leather in one pile. The Bald Eagle Tannery is a monument, to the genius, and skill of its proprietor Mr. Ray. He is a man of superior business talent, a genius in his way and with all, a live, two fisted, fighting Republican. He was formerly a resident of Phila., and was, for eight consecutive years, a member of the Republican State Committee. We would not make this allusion to his politics; but he knows, as well as we, if Grant should be defeated the tariff will be repealed or abolished. He will not be able to compete with foreign capitalists, he will therefore, sell no leather. His establishment will close and some 36 or 46 men now in his employ will be thrown idle. Both Democrats and Republicans will be too poor to purchase, and will consequently be compelled to go it bare footed. What a calamity the defeat of Grant would be! Will the workingmen of Pennsylvania vote to sink the $100,000 which D. P. Ray, Esq., has invested in this Tannery? Will they vote to destroy thousand of similar and other manufacturing establishments throughout the country?

A USEFUL INVENTION.—A great improvement in boots and shoes. "Evans' American Gaiter," patented March 28, 1871, by Thomas R. Evans, of Philadelphia. Comfortable, Stylish and Genteel. Suitable for the Pedestrian or Ball Room and every season in the year. Is very easy to get on or off, has no seam below the instep. Has two styles when on the foot, one looking like a Boot, the other a combined Shoe and Gaiter. Makes a splendid fit and easy on the foot. For sale and made to measure by Graham & Son, Manufacturers and Dealers in Fine Boots and Shoes, Bishop Street, Bellefonte, Pa.

THE Singer is, beyond a doubt, the greatest sewing machine in the world, as thousands who are using it will testify. It is so simple that any one can learn to operate it. It has less machinery and does more work, in a given time, than any other. It is very "handy," and is a "good thing to have about the house."

NATIONAL HISTORY OF THE RED-EYED CICADA.

MR. EDITOR:

In my last, I endeavored to correct some popular errors concerning the Red-eyed Cicada, miscalled Seventeen Year Locust, and gave some account of its relatives and their reputation. I shall now attempt to give briefly the natural history of these interesting insects, whose uninterrupted clangor like the indistinct cawing of distant crows fills my ears as I write.

In common with most insects, the Cicadas are found in three conditions: the egg state, the larva state, and the perfect state.

The eggs, deposited in the middle of a twig, imbibe some of the juices of the tree, and hatch in about sixty days. If a branch which has been stung by the Cicada, be slit through the pith the eggs will be seen in each puncture, ten or twenty together; each about the sixteenth of an inch long, and as thick as a coarse hair.

When hatched, the larvas are about the size of fleas but have the exact shape of the parent insect as it left the ground this spring, before it burst its shell. At once the young Cicadas jump from the branch on which they are hatched, and seek the ground deep into which they enter, where, in darkness and silence, for seventeen long years they feed upon the tender rootlets and juices of the trees from which they descended.

At the end of that period, they emerge from the ground wonderfully increased in size, plump and full of oily juices, and climbing up a bush, stump, stake or other convenient airy situation, commence the process of disencumbering themselves of their old mining suit—the shell they wore so long under the ground. To do this, the Cicada fastens the claws of its outer covering firmly in the crevices of its support, and through a slit in the back, crawls out of its old clothes and appears in a bright new dress, with wings and all other appertenances complete.

For about twenty-five days from early morning till about five or six in the evening, in fair weather, the male Cicadas are busy exercising their vocal powers with unceasing din; while the females are just as busy perforating egg cavities in the twigs of trees and depositing the eggs, of which each insect lays about 800. Then having fulfilled their destiny, departing from the bright and busy world of which they saw so little, they perish leaving naught but shriveled skeletons to mark their fate.

THE TIME OF THEIR APPEARANCE is much disputed by naturalists. Jacger, in his North American Insects, asserts that they appear every year, though only in large numbers at irregular periods. He denies that they remain longer than two years in the ground. He, however, is undoubtly mistaken. Indubitable testimony proves that in this locality (Penns and Nittany valleys at least,) the Red eyed Cicada does appear regularly every seventeen years; that they did so appear in 1838, and again in 1855, as men can verify by family records; and that they did not appear in large numbers in any other year. True, a few scattered ones may and do precede or succeed the main army, by a year or two, but the large mass may be expected to come as regularly as an eclipse of the sun. It is a fact, however, that the Cicadas do not make their appearance in all parts of the United States, or even Pennsylvania at the same time. If what I have gathered is correct, they appeared in Southern and Eastern Pennsylvania four years ago—in 1868; in Ohio, &c., in 1863, and in certain other localities in the South and West, they will appear in 1877. It is probable that the localities in which they appear in any one year, are not always contiguous, but isolated; for instance, they should now, according to Dr. Harris of Massachusetts, be making their appearance in that state, about Sandwich, but I am not aware that their appearance has been noted in the territory intervening. It would be interesting to compile statistics of the times of their appearance, and the territory they occupy and I suggest the collection of a list of names of the places in which they have been seen this year.

That the Red-eyed Cicada does remain UNDER GROUND SEVENTEEN YEARS is proved by the following facts: They fly but short distances; hence they cannot, like other insects, migrate, but live and die on and under the same tree or bush about which their ancestors died and their decendants will live. They have appeared at no place where there was no bush or tree seventeen years ago. They have appeared in thousands around old stumps where trees have been cut down four, six, ten or more years ago, and in the intervening time no bushes have grown up on which they could deposit their eggs, had they then appeared. They have been upturned by the plow five years ago in an old orchard, but did not come out of the ground of that same orchard till this year. These are facts. Though in immense numbers in the ground they generally burrow too deep to be noticed, and even when unearthed escape general observation.

With your permission, Mr. Editor, I shall conclude this article next week by endeavoring to bring to notice some of the peculiarities and uses of the Cicadas. L.

ANNUAL SCHOOL REPORT OF CENTRE COUNTY, FOR THE SCHOOL YEAR ENDING JUNE 3, 1872.

In submitting this report, I desire to thank the directors, and friends of public school education, of Centre county, for the kind consideration with which the suggestions made in my former reports have been received, and for the earnest effort made to carry out the measures from time to time recommended.

For a full exhibit of the work of the year the reader is referred to the accompanying tabular statement,—a brief summary of which only can be given here.

Houses and furniture. Eleven new school houses have been built during the year:—Benner 2, Boggs 1, Haines 1, Harris 1, Huston 1, Patton 1, Potter 1, Snow Shoe 1, Spring 1, Rush 1, all of which are commodious and substantial. All the new houses have been supplied with good, comfortable desks, and nine old ones have been suitably refurnished. The new house at Lemont, in Harris district, deserves especial mention. For ornament and beauty it is unsurpassed in the county, and is a fit model for imitation by other districts.

The number of houses reported unfit for use has been reduced to seventeen, (17) and are situated as follows:—Boggs 1, Ferguson 3, Harris 1, Huston 1, Marion 1, Miles 2, Patton 1, Potter 2, Spring 2, Union 2, Worth 1. It is earnestly hoped that these condemned structures may speedily be replaced by edifices in keeping with the spirit of the times.

Fourteen schools are seated with improved patent furniture.

Schools.—The number of schools in the county is 207, an increase of three since last report; of these, sixty are graded, and all, except two or three, as well classified as circumstances permit, for until we have a thorough system of graded schools, the classification must remain somewhat defective.

The attention of directors is again earnestly invited to the subject of graded schools, as suggested in last year's report. Such schools are needed particularly at Julian Furnace, in Huston; Penn Hall or Spring Mills, in Gregg; Marsh Creek, in Curtin; Farmers' Mills, and Snow Shoe, Additional grades are needed at Philipsburg and Milesburg.

Examinations.—Thirty public examinations were held, continuing from the close of the County Normal School, September 21st, until the opening of the public schools in November. For want of a sufficient number of teachers, eight private examinations were reluctantly granted, and certificates afterwards given to three applicants who had partially failed at the regular examinations.

The public examinations were attended by one hundred and fifteen directors, and one thousand and sixty-four citizens.

The qualifications of teachers were generally higher than the year previous, though the average grade of certificate remained about the same. This is accounted for by the fact that, Physiology was introduced into the examination—a branch with which many of the teachers were comparatively unacquainted. To the best of my knowledge there are not half a dozen teachers in the county who are not regular readers of the "Pennsylvania School Journal," and "Educator."

Visitations.—All the schools were visited once, except two not in session at the time; some received a second, and a few a third visit. Number of visits 272, of which 161 were made with directors, to whom, with proper instructions, I committed the further supervision of the schools. 110 directors, and 248 patrons thus accompanied me. These visitations were continued uninterruptedly from the beginning to the end of our short term, and then it was barely possible to reach all the schools ere they closed, in connection with the extra attention required in some localities, the office work, the County Institute, etc. More thorough supervision is needed—such supervision as will not only reach, but watch closely every part of the work of every school. It is just as necessary for the school as for the farm, the workshop, the railroad, or the manufactory. The Superintendent cannot do this, for the utmost he can do is to visit the schools once or twice; visits from directors, though of much practical benefit, will not answer the purpose, for to inspect well the work of others, such person must himself be a first class teacher—a professional expert. Herein is where the district superintendency, with us, has failed to accomplish that amount of good which it otherwise would have done. Such superintendent could exercise supervision over forty or fifty schools, neighboring districts jointly employing one extra teacher for the purpose. Supervision of this kind is not experiment; recommended for years by the State Superintendent, it has been fairly tested, and is now in operation in many counties of the State, with the best results. The subject is certainly worthy of careful consideration by directors.

County Institute.—Our twenty-fifth annual Institute was held at Bellefonte, during holiday week. Two hundred and ten teachers were present—a decrease of twenty since last year. This was owing to reports of small-pox prevailing in Bellefonte. Average attendance of teachers two hundred, and spectators, five hundred, at every session. The exercises were of a purely practical and professional character. Prominent among the instructors were Prof. J. W. Shoemaker, Mrs. R. H. Shoemaker, and Prof. J. S. Roberts. Evening lectures were delivered by James Calder, D. D., president of "Pennsylvania Agricultural College" Rev. James Mullen, and Prof. Shoemaker.

Normal Institute.—The sixth annual session, under the supervision, and partial instruction of the superintendent, was held at Rebersburg, prior to the fall examinations. Eighty teachers were in attendance.

The Scriptures were read daily in every school, and the Lord's Prayer repeated every morning in many.

Text-books.—We have district uniformity, and have had no change of books for six years.

Vocal Music.—Considerable advancement has been made. In addition to daily exercises in singing, one or two lessons a week in the elements and science of music were given in many schools. The difficulty in the way of its general introduction was, that many of our teachers were entirely unacquainted with even the most rudimentary principles. It is hoped that such teachers will properly qualify themselves, by another year, to teach all that may be required of them.

Drawing.—An effort has been made to introduce this branch into the schools, within the last year, Bartholomew's drawing cards were used in about 150 schools. This branch should be taught as universally and thoroughly as penmanship.

Decoration.—Many of the school-rooms are very tastefully decorated with mottoes, pictures, flowers, etc., supplied with window papers or curtains, and are kept scrupulously clean. I am sorry I cannot say this of all.

Morals and Manners.—In this I think I am safe in saying considerable improvement has been made. More attention has been given to the general out-door conduct and habits of pupils than formerly, and with the most desirable results. There is no time when the watchful care of the teacher is more necessary than at recess, and before and after school.

The educational agencies outside of the public school work are the same as contained in former reports, and need not be repeated here.

Before closing I would call the attention of directors to the seeming want of the establishment of several new schools, one in Benner, one in the lower part of Burnside and one on the mountain above Pleasant Gap, (the latter perhaps jointly between Benner, Spring, and Potter.) Let no spot in Centre County, however isolated, remain destitute of proper facilities for the education of the young.

IOWA, NEBRASKA, KANSAS, CALIFORNIA.—Advertising alone does not produce success. The thing which is advertised must have intrinsic merit, or else large advertising will eventually do it more harm than good. If you have anything which you know to be good, advertise it thoroughly, and you will be sure to succeed: if it is poor, don't praise it, for people will soon discover you are lying.

Such is the policy of the BURLINGTON ROUTE, which runs to three great regions in the West: 1st, To Omaha, connecting with the great Pacific Roads. 2d, To Lincoln, the capital of Nebraska, and all that beautiful region south of the Platte, filled with R. R. lands and homesteads. 3d, To St. Joseph, Kansas City and all Kansas points.

The roads are splendidly built, have the best bridges, finest cars, the Miller platform and coupler, and the safety air brake (to prevent the loss of life that is every where else happening); Pullman's sleepers, Pullman dining cars, large and powerful engines (to make quick time and good connections), and are in a word the best equipped roads in the West. So that if you desire to go safely, surely, quickly and comfortably to any point in Southern Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, or on the Pacific Roads, be sure that you go "By Way of Burlington."

All who wish particular information, and a large map, showing correctly the Great West, and all its railroad connections, can obtain them, and any other knowledge, by addressing General Passenger Agent, B. & Mo. R. R. R., Burlington, Iowa. 14-3m.

THE BROCKERHOFF.—This excellent Hotel—D. Johnson & Sons, proprietors—has been pretty thoroughly refitted and refurnished. It is emphatically one of the best Hotels in the State. Mr. David Johnson the senior of the firm has been severely attacked for the last two months with rheumatism; but we are happy to state, is now convalescent.

THOSE of our readers who are suffering from a severe attack of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, or any pain, should at once apply Pain Cure Oil. It is a sure cure. Sold Wholesale and retail by F. P. Green, Druggist Bellefont Pa.

THANKS.—We received a complimentary ticket to attend the "Grand Pic-nic" and trot on the grounds of the Clearfield Park Association" to come off on the 4th of July. The premiums to be competed for are $415.00. For the ticket we are indebted to the enterprising and gentlemanly President of this Association—O. B. Merrill. We are sorry we cannot be present.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

A CARD.—We take this method of saying that there is no truth in the reports that have been circulated, "that we intend quitting the coal business as soon as our present supply is sold out." On the contrary we have on hands now and intend to keep on hand a well selected stock of the best Anthracite coal in the market.
